ABOUT THE NEIGHBORHOOD

WELCOME TO JAPANTOWN

Japantown, also known as Nihonmachi, is a historic and culturally rich neighborhood in San Francisco's Western Addition district. Established in the aftermath of the 1906 earthquake, it became a hub for Japanese immigrants and their descendants, evolving into the oldest and largest Japantown in the United States.

Spanning approximately six city blocks along Post Street, Japantown offers a vibrant blend of traditional and contemporary Japanese culture. The neighborhood's focal point is the Japan Center, a complex of three interconnected malls featuring a variety of authentic Japanese shops, restaurants, and cultural institutions. Within the Japan Center's Peace Plaza stands the iconic five-tiered Peace Pagoda, a gift from San Francisco's sister city, Osaka, symbolizing enduring friendship and peace.

Throughout the year, Japantown hosts numerous cultural events and festivals that celebrate Japanese heritage. Notably, the Northern California Cherry Blossom Festival, held every April, draws thousands of visitors with its vibrant parades, performances, and culinary delights. Another highlight is the Nihonmachi Street Fair in August, which showcases Asian-Pacific American culture and community.

Visitors to Japantown can immerse themselves in a variety of experiences, from savoring authentic Japanese cuisine at local eateries to exploring specialty shops offering traditional crafts, books, and gifts. The neighborhood also features cultural landmarks such as the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California, which offers programs and exhibits that promote Japanese culture and heritage.

As one of only three remaining Japantowns in the United States, San Francisco's Japantown serves as a vital cultural and historical center, preserving and celebrating the rich traditions of the Japanese-American community.
